

ABSTRACT

Optically aligning and connecting an array of optical devices to an array of optical grating couplers using a variety of bonding techniques, as a means of transferring optical signals to and from optoelectronic integrated circuits to facilitate their processing.